Portland House Bressenden Place London SW1E 5BH

18th September 2019

The Thorney Island Society were not informed of this application, hence this late response. At an earlier meeting with the developers we expressed our main misgivings.

We are pleased that the original structure is being retained, not least because recycling buildings is better for the environment than new builds. However we object to the extension on Bressenden Place because of its narrowing effect on the street, which is already quite canyon-like and will become more so when the Nova development is completed. We also think that the junctions between the extension and the original building could have been better designed, with a set back or some kind of 'flash-gap'.

We are also concerned by the new window detail, with dark grey reveals around the windows in place of the existing concrete.
